

Caring For Our Community

For those who missed out on vital skills at school, or need to top up their literacy and numeracy skills, there is a welcoming, supportive environment available at Adult Literacy in Kapiti and Horowhenua. They help give everyone the opportunity to move forward in their lives.

Adult Literacy Aotearoa

Sally teaches computer classes in Kapiti. Like all tutors, she's a volunteer. "To some people a mouse is something that squeaks," she says. "We teach terminology and skills, including showing people how to set up their own hotmail accounts for emailing."

Karen (right) is hoping to use her new computer skills from Adult Literacy to find a good job. She's also accessed the organisation's road code classes. Manager Jenny (left) says the classes provide a really safe, supportive learning environment for those who don't fare well in other learning institutions.
