Taking action against family violence means different things to different people. For many who work in our community to reduce family violence, it's a daily effort. For others, it could be turning up to one of the events mentioned here, or making a phone call to get the support you need, or to support others by making a phone call to instigate change. Which ever applies to you, White Ribbon Day is a really great time to take even a small step.

Your chance to help stop family violence

Super Maori Fullas are spreading their message of love and respect for partners and family with their White Ribbon ride on their Harley Davidson's, from Wellington to Whangarei. They'll be stopping in Kapiti and Levin and invite riders to join them to show their support. Wednesday 25 November; Coastlands car park 2pm-2.30pm; and Levin Memorial Hall and Village Green, 3pm-3.30pm.

If you need support, or know someone who does, please, contact local police, or these organisations:
