

Caring For Our Community

SPCA Manager Sandy Youthed came up through the ranks from being a volunteer. "Our primary goal in Horowhenua is the care of abandoned animals that are sick or injured," she says. "Some people think we're like Animal Control, but they're next door."

Not just a place for little cuties

"Adopting is giving animals a second chance. That's our aim," says Sandy. Potential adoptees will have an inspection done on their homes and lifestyle to make sure they're suitable.

If you can't commit to adoption the SPCA really needs temporary foster parents, especially for cats with a new litter of kittens.

If you're a tradesperson who has some spare time, Horowhenua SPCA needs to rebuild the roof of the dog kennel which was damaged by the storm. They also need some fencing and concreting done. Sandy would like to hear from you if you'd like to volunteer a couple of hours a week.
