A strong and energetic group of volunteers is supporting the Cancer Society on the Kapiti Coast.

Cancer auxiliary

The Cancer Society's Waikanae auxiliary raises funds for specific projects and equipment, for cancer health care and for the provision of services to cancer patients.

The auxiliary has been busy on the coast since 1981 and every year raises a significant amount of money to provide funding assistance to Kapiti cancer patients and their families.

The committee could not manage their fundraising activities without a willing group of people to call on, like at the annual Lions Garden Trail when auxiliary's associates bake muffins, scones or fruit loaves to sell to hungry participants.

A monster garage sale has been one of the auxiliary's major fundraising projects every year for 17 years, raising a total $20,720, the latest effort worth $1,833.

Donations made this year include:

Wellington Blood and Cancer Centre: $582 for pill cutters and patient pill boxes and $3,618 for three pulse oximeters

Cancer Society Wellington Division: $5,000 to help fund the patient Driving Service

Mary Potter Hospice: $300 for specialised Roho Matteredz patient pillows and $3,000 for a steam cleaner to clean patient Lazyboy chairs

The auxiliary is always encouraged to continue its work by the generous support received from the local community.

Anyone who would like to volunteer with the auxiliary can contact:

Sue Carley, president, 04 904 3040

Maureen Starke, secretary, 04 293 2729

Their next fundraising venture is their Memory Tree at Coastlands, another annual event. They will be situated at the southern end of the Food Court this year, from 12th to 21st December for shoppers to buy a symbol to represent a loved one who has died.

Their fundraising has enabled equipment to be donated to the Wellington Blood and Cancer Centre where Kapiti patients requiring radiation therapy and chemotherapy are treated. They also support the work of the Kapiti Oncology community nurses and the Mary Potter Community Hospice caring for people affected by cancer by providing equipment and resources.
